

Ramin Marzbani - Director

Ramin Marzbani is a General Partner at Indigo Venture Capital Partners, based in Sydney, focusing on seed and early stage technology companies.

Ramin is regarded as a leading technology, Internet and financial services analyst in Australia and Asia. Ramin was the CEO of www.consult from 1995 to 2003 and oversaw the transition of the company to ACNielsen following sale of the business in 2000. The company had gained recognition for pioneering work and excellence in 13 Asia Pacific countries. It has subsequently been integrated into ACNielsen (The Nielsen Company).

Previously, Ramin had spent three years as a consultant for Booz-Allen & Hamilton and seven years in various marketing, sales, head office and finance positions at IBM Australia and IBM India Offshore Operations.

Ramin sits on the Board of several investee companies such as Event Zero, DigiSensory and Infrastructure Resource Management. He also sits on the Advisory Boards of various institutions and companies such as MIR Funds Management and Investment Trends where he continues to be active in various consulting roles. He has over the past years sat on the boards of The Telstra Broadband Fund, Fusia, Lazard Asia Pacific Asset Management, Project GOTH, Returnity and others.

Ramin holds a BE (Mechanical) with First Class Honours from the University of New South Wales and an MBA with Distinction from the Australian Graduate School of Management and NYU Stern. Ramin is the recipient of various academic and professional achievement awards including the BCG University Medal for Corporate Strategy.

Ramin is a member of the Market Research Society of Australia, a Charter member of TiE, a director of the Mindd Foundation and a past member of the Australian Institute of Company Directors, the internet Society and the Centre for Independent Studies.